“ Thinking of you Andy and the boys Max, Jay and Jon in this time of hardship and sadness xxx one of my memories with Anna is trying to figure out if Max really did know where I lived , Anna and I could never really work out how he knew until one day she saw us out the front and popped in with the boys and had a chat , we had a great laugh. She was a lovely lady a beautiful mum for her boys xx may she Rest In Peace x

“ Anna always made me smile and often this would turn into a laugh. We shared a common bond..... we were mothers of boys!! We certainly enjoyed debriefing about this and tried to encourage each other in the important role we had in the lives of our children. Anna loved Jay, Jon and Max with her whole being and provided for them (along with Andy) a very happy life where the boys laughed and played together as best friends. It was clear to me that there was a very strong sense of family and the boys seemed to have already figured out, at a very young age, that prioritising each other was the way to go.

The boys' zest for life and happy dispositions are such a credit to Anna's commitment to her children and symbolic of how blessed she felt to be their mother.

Anna's positivity, servant-heart and endless energy has been an inspiration to me

Anna is now at peacewith God - of that I'm sure.
I found this poem which has provided some comfort and peace for me so I thought I'd share with everyone.

Her Journey's Just Begun

Don't think of her as gone away
her journey's just begun
life holds so many facets
this earth is only one.
Just think of her as resting from the sorrows and the tears in a place of warmth and comfort where there are no days or years.
Think how she must be wishing that we could know today
how nothing but our sadness can really pass away.
And think of her as living in the hearts of those she touched for nothing loved is ever lost and she was loved so much.
