“ My Father was a very easy going person. A kind, loving and caring father and a good Husband to mum. He was humble and worked very hard to build his family in his early life. He had strong family values and I have learned that through him from young. He loved his siblings and was particularly close with one of our uncles, Chun Shiok. My cousins were not only blood relations but were my first and best friends in life and we grew up together as a big family. Dad kept things to himself and I rarely hear him complain about things, people or even food, except at the later part of his life that he was a bit more picky as he became old and frail and preferred softer texture food such as over cooked pasta and veggies.

Dad was a very strict father when we were young, and would discipline, cane us whenever we were naughty, or when we failed our grades in school. I had quite a number of those canning episodes while growing up. He would explain to us why we were being disciplined and made us understood and learn and to remember the consequences and not to repeat the same mistakes again. Each time before the caning punishment started, he made me say to him "dad I dare not do that again". Hence it had taught me and made me to be a more responsible person, to admit mistakes, face the consequences of my mistakes and learn from it.

Dad as the head of the family had displayed authority, love and harmony in the family.

I had never heard or seen our parents argue over anything let alone quarrelled at all ! They have shown us care and respect for each other's feeling in a relationship is what makes a strong and happy relationship, hence a harmonious happy family environment.

Thank you Dad for all your love, guidances and care throughout these years. It has been such a privilege to have a father like you. I miss you, we all miss you and you will remain dearly in our hearts forever.

“ *My grandad was a unique character
Not only was he 6 foot tall
He had big smiling eyes
A tall nose
And striking features
He was without a doubt a handsome man
He always managed to stand out from a crowd, you could never miss him*

*Grandad had a cheeky sense of humour
The kind that new people felt comfortable to be around, there were countless family dinners where he asked where the waitress was from, they would answer and he would then tell them either; that he'd visited their country or he'd surprise them and say something in their language. Everyone would smile and laugh and the waiter would always remember him happily and chuckle away as they were at our table.*

The other thing about Grandad at the dinner table was that he always remembered your favourite dish, he cottoned on that my favourite dishes include Chinese soup and fish. No waiter ever said no to him if he asked for our soup to be refilled and when deciding on what to order with the waiter he always made sure the fish we were getting was fresh, preferably a snapper and to the satisfaction of Grandma!

He also loved travelling; he loved exploring, discovering new countries and new cultures and most of all people watching. He wanted to see it all and he did. He could speak to anyone; his openness to see and experience new things was something I will always admire.

Grandad was always present throughout our lives, supporting and cheering us on for each of our milestones. As grandkids, he watched us finish school, pass our P's, get our driver's license, graduate from university and land our first jobs! He was with us, throughout our journey.

His adventurous spirit led him on solo trips out to suburbs that we'd never seen before, Bankstown, to San Souci and many more; no suburb was too far for him and his car. He would bring back mountains of fruit and veggies, especially mangoes and oranges, enough to feed a small army!

He was a man who showed his love through his actions, he provided a stable foundation to this family, a father figure who could be relied upon. He led by example and showed us what it meant to have work ethic, be strong, independent and selfless.

We will be eternally grateful for the life of the man I am so proud to be able to call my granddad, a soul that brought so much joy to our lives, may you be set free and continue to smile from above and know that we are always with you.

We love you now and forever.

Your Granddaughter, Stephanie Ho

“ We come from a traditional, humble, family home, Dad was the sole provider with mum staying at home to look after all four of us. Dad gave us everything he could, he enrolled us all into good schools and together with Mum he encouraged and developed us to be good citizens in life. We were brought up in a close knit family, Dad took us on weekend car trips and also overseas to broaden our horizons. We had a happy childhood.

I loved soccer as a kid and every chance I got I would leave the house to go play. Little did I know, just how Dad kept a watchful eye on me. One day, to check in on me, Dad told Mum to come with him on a drive to the park to make sure I wasn't mixing with the wrong crowd. He protected us and made us feel safe so we could make the most of our lives.

In 1975, Dad immigrated to Australia to make a better life for us. He worked here for 3 years, sending money back every month to support our family. His hard work and unconditional love saw that we were then able to come live with him in Australia by 1978. We haven't looked back since. Dad and Mum both love Sydney and with Julia living in Singapore and Lelia in Hong Kong, they have been able to live between these countries happily. Enjoying the best of the three worlds!

Dad was a traditional, family man and instilled strong family values in all of us. Every year, he would organise our Chinese New Year banquet and the whole family would fly back for this occasion. He was happiest surrounded by all of his children and grandkids.

Mum, Dad and my wife would have a weekend dinner routine. We would pick, Dad up at his home at 5:30pm just when he would finish watching the Hong Kong news on TV. Over dinner, Dad would be able to tell you every news head line in Hong Kong and around the world.

From now on, Dad, I will not be able to pick you up for dinner or hear your update on the latest news. I will sorely miss that. But we will cherish all the fond memories we had together as a family and we will never forget how much you gave to this family.

I know that God has called upon you now, but you will forever be in our hearts. Dad, may you rest in peace. We will always love you and we will be seeing you, now and forever.

JE

I have to take this last opportunity to express my heartfelt thanks to you, to my dearest uncle. You had always been a courteous and respectful gentleman.

Every time we met, your smile and genuine greetings made us feel welcomed.

During my stay at Wollongong, every time I went to Sydney, you always waited for me at the station and showed me around. I remember the Chinese restaurant you took me to - it was so beautiful. You took me to different places in Sydney. I felt like a total VIP and it was the best memory of my stay in Australia. I would never forget your kindness and hospitality.

You were a wonderful brother to my father, you were his great companion too. Whenever you were in Hong Kong, you spent so much time with him, travelled with him; you had always told Mum to enjoy life; you loved us like your own children. Your presence added colours to our lives.

We will always miss you and you will live in our memories.
