“ Dear Frank,

I am so saddened hear of your passing. Knowing you over the years has been a real pleasure. Whether it was our times as youngster engineers getting up to mischief with the grad team on the weekend aways, or to our daily striving to achieve greatness at work, you were always willing us into the world with care, poise and humour. Thank you for being a great example of a wonderful human being. May you rest peacefully.

Dear Vanessa,

Hanna and I are so sorry for your loss. We wish you love and support in this time and please reach out if we can help in any way.

“ Frank,

You are a wonderful human being and an inspiring leader. Smart, funny, emotionally intelligent, hard working and great fun to be with. I learnt a whole lot from working with you and seeing you turn around any skepticism with your enthusiasm but also clear and sensible plans . Your family and in particular, your children will know what a legacy of goodwill you have left and how many lives you have touched for the better. I am grateful to have had a chance to know you and work with you. Deb Learoyd

“ Frank, I know we only worked together for a few years at Honeywell but you were always ready to help when I asked. I know its not easy trying to provide technical understanding to us sales guys but you did it with a smile and always ready to jump into customer meetings when asked. Your easy going nature was a pleasure to be around and the world has truly lost one of the nice guys, I'll miss you mate. “ Frank, I'm so grateful to have known you and call you my brother. One of my favourite memories is randomly bumping into you in the midst of crowds at Blue Cow, all from recognising that big helmet of yours! You've always been the life of the party and I'm going to miss trying hard not to laugh at your inappropriate jokes as well as your funny English phrases that don't make much sense. Thank you for your generosity to me - whether you and Ness have given me lifts to make sure I got home OK, the feasts (BBQ salmon belly FTW, KFC, guai ling goh), waiting for me to catch up on our runs on the slopes. I'm honoured to have you as a friend for life.

We will be looking out for Ness and the boys. We love and miss you, but we will meet again in Eternity. Rest in the arms of our loving Father in Heaven, brother.

“ Frank you are a beautiful soul. It was a blessing to have known and worked with you over the years.

In my heritage, as hard as it sounds, cancer has been nick named the 'disease of heaven' – because it allows a person to prepare their soul to meet their maker.

Frank, you prepared and finished your race well, and your last days allowed your beautiful soul to become even more beautiful.

We know that you are now at peace, hope to see you at the fulfilment of the promise of the resurrection, and pray that your family and friends are comforted for their difficult loss - in a way that only the Lord can.

We had truly enjoyed those wonderful moments that we shared together at hotpot dinners, mahjong sessions and wine/sake times. This hit hard. Frankie was the best guy i worked with in 20 years at HON. Frankie made a huge difference to a situation simply with his attitude. He and i had a bond beyond work mostly over a shared love of cars over the years , we kept track of what we are driving now, a love of whisky and cigars, and then there was fun at work.

Frank visited us in MN back in 2018, i grilled, we swopped car stories, he entertained my wife and daughter with our escapades and they have fond memories of Frank and are equally in shock.

The picture is a gift from Frank. today, seemed appropriate. Thanks for many things Frankie. i hope to continue our car chats on the other side. Lets just not build another IDP. (sorry Honeywell joke)

“ Miss you already Frank. Catching up with you is a highlight to every trip back to Sydney, and its not going to be the same now.

Your way of both, respectfully listening and also nudging new ideas, into conversation lightened the stressful and long days at the office; and I'd look forward to running ideas by you or just catching up when I needed a break. Your "why not" "lets do it" attitude was contagious and uplifting.

Vanessa, my absolute condolences to you and your boys. Frank was a great mate, but he was a great husband above all. He only mentioned you in glowing terms; and he'd often rush out of the office saying he was meeting you for dinner, its literally the only thing that would get him rushing out of the office.

“ Frank was a genuine, intelligent and humble young man and will be truly missed by those who knew him. Frank was always very authentic, with a great sense of humour and always good to be around. I met Frank back in 2011 at church and was blessed to have had many snow trips with him. One such trip was to New Zealand in 2016, where Frank's skills on a snowboard really came to shine. Where ever the best of the skier and boarders went, Frank was right there along side them. Off the snow, Frank shared his talents for coming up with new ideas. One such 'idea' was to run from a 40 degree hot tub, to a sub zero swimming pool. Initially it was an 'in and out' dip, quick & cold then back to the hot tub. Later in the evening Frank upped the stakes, deciding to swim a full length in a 50m pool. Needless to say 40 meters into the swim with the freezing cold water taking its toll, Franks freestyle turned into a breaststroke, then into a paddle. Determined not to fall short, Frank finished his 50m freezing swim and returned to the hot tub. This was just one of the many great memories I was blessed and fortunate to share with Frank. To Vanessa and the family, you remain in our prays for your loss. We pray the Lord will comfort you in this time of sorrow and grief, whilst being renewed in God's promise of grace & hope in his sons resurrection.

“ I have been blessed to have known Frank as a colleague and friend for 15 years. It's been a wonderful journey through which we made lifelong memories and he taught me so much about work and even more about life.

He taught me that whatever you do in life, do it with all your heart, whether it be preparing for a late presentation, snowboarding down an alpine slope or choosing between an Oban 18, Lagavulin 16 or Yamazaki 12.

He taught me to be loyal. He stood by his friends, teams and all those ideas and products he brought to life.

He taught me when life is hard, act with courage, integrity, honour and class. Stand up for what is right, even if it hurts you today - people will respect you for it.

He taught me to laugh and don't sweat the small stuff. Even at the most difficult of times, his ability to crack a joke amazed me.

Frank, love you mate! One thing is for certain - my life is better because you were in it. Rest in peace my friend. See you on the other side.

“ I was fortunate to work with Frank for more than 10 years. As others have said in the comments below, he just had a natural leadership ability and such a kind nature that made you want to work with him. He made work fun and was always smiling. Regardless of how high in the organisation he rose, his demeanour and friendly nature never changed. Frank as a manager was always supportive of our team and when I started managing people myself, he was always there to give advice and support.

Some of the best overseas trips I have had for work were with Frank. In potentially stressful situations he was always positive and lead from the front. Those trips can be a lot of work but somehow with Frank around, it was fun too. Some of my fondest memories at the company are from trips to the US and India and a big part of that is because of Frank.

When the team I was leading was disbanded in 2020 due to a restructure, even though Frank was no longer at the company, he still reached out to me to offer condolences and to ask how everyone was. This was even though at the time he obviously had a lot on his plate. This is just the kind of leader, colleague and friend Frank was. He truly was one of the best of us.

I am so sad that Frank has been taken from us so soon, but believe he has gone to a better place and hope that we might meet again someday. Not goodbye but see you later, Frank. I would like to pass on condolences from myself and my wider team to Frank's family. He was one of a kind.

“ Our hearts are all broken.
Frank was an amazing man, great friend, work colleague and work manager. He always made you smile and was always there to help. He cared so much for everyone.
He had that the ability to lighten the situation with his humor, it was never tense when Frank "was in the house".
I will never forget Frank's T shirt record, he wore a different T shirt to work every day. He must have had the largest T shirt wardrobe in the world. In the 13 years working with him I cannot remember seeing the same shirt twice.
I cannot believe he has left us, there will never be another Frank Lin.
The world has lost a legend.

“ A true leader who was a friend first and foremost. Many of us owe a lot to Frank for our careers. For me personally, even to this day, I look up to Frank when I think about managing people because it was just so natural to him. I couldn't name one person that thought of Frank as anything but a friend. Irrelevant of whether they worked under him, alongside or above. He was just a true mate.

My career grew and shone to where I wouldn't have imagined, and most of the credit was to Frank without doubt. I've personally told him this on many occasions and I was so excited to catch up with him after his Honeywell days because I knew the impact he was going to make on his new journeys. He always put people first and their troubles ahead of anything else. Someone I knew I could always go-to and get proper advice.

People say that manager end employee relationships come with love and hate and are part of the parcel. However I can't think of one instance of hate in our relationship. It was always just love and true friendship.

It is really hard to come to terms with this loss and I so pray he is in a much better place now. Let us hope God gives the courage and strength to Frank's family to get through these hard times. I know he is looking down and still leading the way he always has in Frank's style. May God bless and we will miss you friend. -Srini
