Although James did not have a family of his own, his legacy will live on through his many nieces and nephews. James, I will have that beer with you again one day. Thanks for the memories. “ Through the short but meaningful time I got to know you even nearly towards the end, you showed me laughed, love, forgiveness, pain and sadness. I remember we used to challenge each other and you have never like to back down. But you would personally phoned and say sorry. I will never forget that. You showed me your charisma, witty, and your intelligent. But people closes to you knew were in pain. I know you are at peace now my friend and looking over us all who cared for you. You will never be forget and forgotten for the funny and witty strong character in my eyes. I will miss the random catch ups. It's still seem abit surreal sometimes. You will always be remembered James x.

“ James,

It feels surreal....and it will forever be this way. As brothers its different, we had our moments. We have been brought up to be strong minded, independent, straight shooters and bloody stubborn. We all carry this sense of humour as we all shared things in common growing up and no matter how dirty the jokes are we know where you are coming from and we share a good laugh. We all cared for each other no matter what and no matter what was said. We are family.

James, our youngest of brothers but had wisdom that had to be respected. You articulate emotions beyond others. Your Charisma (never knew you had) gave you friends everywhere you ventured. You had natural abilities to connect with people and whenever you were passionate.... You strived..... (Top 30 in gaming.....!!!!).

The illness widely misunderstood must have been an unimaginable burden and now i find comfort in knowing you are free of the pain. Rest easy.... And bloody listen to the higher beings.... May they guide you to greener pastures and find eternal happiness.

We will meet again. But for now we will remember.

“ I first met James when he was 7 or 8 in Toronto. Loud bratty child with a sense of adventure. In 2007 I saw him again as a young man. He grew to be someone who was so charismatic, kind hearted, and charming. I bet he could charm the pants off anyone lol. I loved watching him and how he interacted with others and he just would attract everyone around him. He certainly had my attention and I'm so happy he is my family. Rest in peace , you will be missed.

“ Goodbye brother. Thankyou for the last 13 years. I wouldn't haven it any other way. You were a rockstar everywhere you went. You taught everyone how to truly live and always made a hell of an impression. I wouldn't be who I am today without you. May you rest in peace now.

“ Uncle James, thank you for being a light in so many people's lives, for finding a way to make light of any situation and reminding us that life is way too short. It makes me happy that my last memories of you were you smiling and laughing and cracking jokes left right and centre. I'm sorry that this world can be cruel. Rest easy, and say hi to Mummy for me :) I hope that you are happy now. You will be missed.

“ *My brother James,

It breaks my heart, every time I realise I'll never be able to hear your voice or your infectious laugh again.

Every time I drive past your place, I look up to the balcony, reminiscing the laughs we had there. Reminiscing of the memories we had with the boys.

I miss you so much.*

“ James was one of the few who was at St. Andrew's in our primary years 5/6. He was one of the most lively in our class and to this day, we maintained contact across the Asia Pacific region. He will be sorely missed and was taken too soon. Always in our hearts and on our minds. Rest In Peace, James.

“ *The first day met brother Jamesy. We just clicked. And everything after that just became our history. All the time we went to church and had a crazy drunken escapade, or the times we would just hang out at pumpkin for endless hours talking shit. All the memories we made will forever be with me and I'll never forget them.*

RIP Brother Jamesy.
