“ My wife and I were privilege to watch online the proceedings of the service for Mr Lau. It prompted me to add further a few more words: Sam was a good man.

He lived through a very rough time in China and Hong Kong.

He looked after the family through thick and thin.

He was kind, compassionate and simply a lovely man.

I wish I have known him better, our paths did cross a few times, and during those encounters he struck an inner chord within me that he was an unusually fine gentleman one whom you can trust and call a friend.

He is no longer in this world but his spirit lives on in the hearts of his loved ones.

His true eternal self moves on to another plane of existence whereby his exuberance for life will see him in a happier place amongst new friends, and amongst his dear ones who have departed before him.

I wish him joy, love and God speed to a new home of God's many mansions in heaven.

May his beloved children, grandchildren, and family take comfort and strength from Sam who has lived a good life, an exemplary life, one of caring, caring and kindness.

“ Mr Lau was a kind and friendly man who was always calm and welcomed others with a smile. He left this fond impression on everyone around him, including those he met only on occasion. Over the many years of visiting his daughter Queeny at their home, we remember how he was quick to welcome us and offer a tasty bite from the kitchen. He was a proud family man and his eyes would always light up when we spoke of Queeny. I had the opportunity to be a part of family gatherings of which I remember how happy he and the whole family were, laughing and making lots of quick witted jokes. We will remember him dearly and never forget his happy spirit.

Our sincere condolences to the Lau family - Tammy & Yosuke.

“ It was with much sadness that we learned of Sam's passing a few days ago from our daughter Tammy who is a close school friend of Queeny. It was always a delight to chat with him and Mae whenever we meet over many years. He was a warm, gentle and friendly person. We happened to bump into each other recently, also with Queeny and her little one in Castle Hill Home Centre. As he talked to us in his usual amicable self, we recall how happy he looked whilst he was minding his grandchild. Our deepest condolence to Mae and his family.

“ Uncle Sam was a delightful character. Always so inviting, warm and friendly.

I had such a blast at Queeny's pool parties and sleep overs during our younger days and Uncle Sam and Aunty Mae would always make sure we were well fed and enjoying ourselves. He use to sit in their lounge room with the fan on reading some sort of paper most times and was always so excited when it came to meal times because he'd always like to show his prize jar of hottest chilis. Sharing meals with Uncle Sam and the rest of the family was always a treasure to remember.

His quirky, sociable character no doubt lives on through his daughter Queeny and his strong sense of family life carries on through his children and grand children. I am glad to have spent part of my youth growing up around Uncle Sam. He will surely be missed but never forgotten.

Rest in peace Uncle Sam.
