“ Dear Sherry, Rachel, Kaley and family,

I offer my deepest condolences to you and I'm very sorry for your loss.

Thomas was my friend and colleague for so many years, this year would have marked our 10th year working together. From the start, he had been a great mentor, leader, influencer and most importantly my friend.

I reminisce, the times we've had in a little office where it was just the two of us working side by side.

He'd tell me about his latest car gadget, his latest fun thing he did with the girls, the latest nicest coffee he's had.

Both being coffee enthusiasts, we'd be discussing how to make a good brew, how to get the best out of the little coffee machines we had.

I'd be roasting and bringing him all the different kinds of coffee that I can get my hands on.

He'd patiently try and he'd review to tell me what he likes and doesn't like.

How some origin is too acidic for him and how some coffee works really well for his soy milk.

We had so much fun and within a short time he said that I've completely spoilt him for coffee.

He got fussier and fussier for better coffee every time I bring him something new and interesting to taste.

We'd say we're true fussy coffee snobs every time we try and pin point what we don't like about a particular coffee.

Our interests crossed paths not just on coffee, we can chat on Investment, on Tech, on Games and photography.

Thomas would often show me some of his photos and his favorite shots from the last trip he had with Rachel and Kaley.

We'd also went on photography walks together where he would teach me techniques and show me different perspectives that I've never thought of.

He had such a creative outlet in photography and I'm so glad that he shared his love of the medium with me.

These are moments that I cherish and miss.

I'll miss his laugh, his insight, his companionship, his words, his perspective and his friendship deeply.

Thank you for letting me be part of his final service.

*Sincerely,
Jackson Lee*

“ Hello to Thomas’s family and may I first offer my condolences to you all.

I would like to express a small tribute to Thomas who was my colleague.

I did not engage directly with Thomas as we both worked on different products. Our roles were also quite different. What brought us together at the office was our lunch area where we talked about how our respective projects were progressing amongst other things. During these discussions we inevitably moved onto different subjects, like his family, my family, house building/renovations, investments, coffee machines and a whole range of other topics. Thomas struck me as an intelligent and thoughtful man and often corrected statements I had made even though I made those statements thinking I was the master of that domain. In truth I did not mind this because it probably saved me from making a series of disastrous decisions. From this point on I always made sure that if I was going to enter into a conversation with Thomas it was surrounding a topic he knew nothing about in the hope I could correct him for once. Alas, it never happened.

Given that he had children that were older than mine, I also asked him for advice on how to handle girls as they grew older. As was his way he calmly explained that the female form remained a mystery to him and his wife and daughters remained a constant source of wonderment. When he said this, I could see the love behind his eyes and I could very much relate to this.

Thank you for your wise council Thomas and may you rest in peace.
